California officials allowed photographers to make pictures Friday of the inside of this van, used as a prison for the 26 Chowchilla , Calif. school children and their bus driver. The van is at a county facility where it was towed from Livermore, Calif., after being unearthed. News people noted that toilets had been improvised by cutting holes in the top of wheel wells. Light in upper right of van was placed there by official for illumination for the press.

Mayor answers charges by petition spokesman

Mayor Don Fulton has answered charges made Friday by Attorney Robert Dempster who says he represents the organization circulating petitions to bring about a vote on Sikeston's present form of government.

Fulton denied a charge made by Dempster that city officials are afraid to let the matter come to a vote. He said petitions such as the one being circulated are part of the democratic process.

The group, whose backers refuse to make their names public, is seeking to return from the present city manager form to a mayor-council form.

During an interview Friday with three members of the press Dempster charged that the $1.3 million budget was far too high for a city the size of Sikeston.

Fulton replied that the budget of Poplar Bluff, a city approximately Sikeston's size, is $3,217,013. Cape Girardeau's budget is $7,960,255, he said.

Dempster said during the interview that Dexter, with its mayor form of government, was an example of a well-run community.

Dempster said he could not give any comparison between the cost of running Dexter and the cost of running Sikeston.

Figures compiled by the Daily Standard show that Dexter has well under one-half of Sikeston's population (6,024 residents to 14,699), and well-under half the land area (3.2 square miles to 8), yet Dexter's budget is almost half that of Sikeston's ($600,000 to $1.3 million).

Fulton said Sikeston's budget has increased less than the inflation rate.

Dempster told the press that Sikeston's tax rate had fallen because assessments had risen, not because of efficiencies in the city manager form of government.

"The city's assessed valuation increased an average of two per cent per year for the last four years, while inflation has increased an average of 7.4 per cent per year," Fulton said.

" The city's tax rate has decreased 25 per cent, or 49 cents over the past 16 years," Fulton said.

In answer to Dempster's charge that the City Manager was a dictator, responsible to no one, Fulton said the city manager form of government was organized like many other public and private institutions.

"The system concentrates the responsibility of managing an organization in one position that can be held accountable," Fulton said.

Dempster said during the interview that Sikeston will probably have to hire a city administrator to operate the day-to-day functions of the city if the mayor form of government is adopted. Dempster estimated that a city administrator could be hired for $20,000, or $5,000 less than City Manager Charles Church's salary.

"A city administrator is only responsible to the mayor, is subject to the political decisions of a mayor, and is not responsible to the entire city council," Fulton said.

The city manager's budget, Fulton said, represents less than .03 per cent of the total budget.

Fulton also denied Dempster's charge that city police are instructed to write tickets to meet their payroll. Dempster later backed away from the charge during the interview.

"The city police department averages about three speeding arrests per day, which is not excessive," Fulton said.

Twice during the interview, Dempster said that when federal revenue sharing came to an end, the city would be in the same financial condition as New York City which is virtually bankrupt.

"The city's revenue sharing funds are budgeted for capital improvements, so the city could continue operating if the revenue sharing program was eliminated," Fulton said.

Dempster also criticized the money received by the city attorney and the police judge.

City Attorney Manuel Drumm receives $11,300 and City Judge Tom Gilmore receives $5,200.

Dempster said the positions are honorary and should be filled by persons working for "substantially less."

Fulton said Drumm provides legal advice to the council, city manager, city boards and commissions. He is also responsible for prosecuting cases in City Court.

Fulton said Drumm works at city business an average of 20 hours per week. If he charged the city at the minimum hourly rate of $25 charged by attorney's in Sikeston, he would earn $15,600.

Gilmore spends five hours per week in court and in preparation for court, Fulton said. If he were to charge the minimum rate his salary would be $6,500 instead of $5,200, Fulton said.

He added that the money budgeted to the city attorney includes funds for a secretary and expenses.

Fulton said the City Court handled 1,457 cases last year.

"It is just as important to have well-qualified and experienced lawyers in a City Court as it is in other courts," Fulton said, so that the public is given a fair and impartial hearing.

"It is also important to have a lawyer who is well-respected and who is not subject to political pressures," Fulton added.

When Dempster was criticizing the amount of money being spent in the city attorney's office, he said the office should be honorary and then named some examples, honorary positions held by lawyers, including that of secretary to the school board.

However, school officials said today that the position of board secretary is not honorary. Secretary Fielding Potashnick is paid $1,200 a year for his regular service to the board, which includes keeping minutes of meetings and giving routine legal advice.

However, the cost of any other legal matters, such as law suits, are not covered by his salary and must be negotiated.

Dempster also said the city of Cape Girardeau budgets $18,000 for its city attorney, who spends all his time on city business. Dempster said he was not sure the $18,000 figure is correct.

Fulton said it is not. Cape Girardeau budgets $25,416 for its attorney, he said.

Mayor answers charges by petition spokesman

Mayor Don Fulton has answered charges made Friday by Attorney Robert Dempster who says he represents the organization circulating petitions to bring about a vote on Sikeston's present form of government.

Fulton denied a charge made by Dempster that city officials are afraid to let the matter come to a vote. He said petitions such as the one being circulated are part of the democratic process.

The group, whose backers refuse to make their names public, is seeking to return from the present city manager form to a mayor-council form.

Fulton replied that the budget of Poplar Bluff, a city approximately Sikeston's size, is $3,217,013. Cape Girardeau's budget is $7,960,255, he said.

Dempster said during the interview that Dexter, with its mayor form of government, was an example of a well-run community.

Fulton said Sikeston's budget has increased less than the inflation rate.

At 10 a.m. Sunday two miles east of Clubb on Highway 34, an accident occurred when a westbound jeep driven by Ronald Eugene Ellington, 32, of Florissant was pulling a loaded trailer when it began weaving and overturned in the road.

A passenger, Ted Baker, 55, of Normandy, received minor injuries and was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital at Fredericktown.

Two Williamsville residents received moderate injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 12:20 a.m. Sunday 10 miles north of Poplar Bluff on Highway 67.

The patrol reported that the accident occurred when a northbound car driven by Gary E. Bratton, 19, of Williamsville, was forced off the road by an approaching vehicle.

Bratton and a passenger, Howard E. Conray, 18, of Williamsville, suffered injuries and were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

THE PARABLE OF THE FOOLISH FARMER

Americans — and, more especially, American politicians — are inclined to think much more about domestic problems than those on the international level. In a typical survey, one Representative in Washington recently asked his constituents for their opinions on busing, crime, government spending, economy, energy, education and environment. All very important, yes. Unfortunately, not one question was asked concerning our military strength, or our foreign policy, and certainly no question on the subject of the world balance of power.

If we may indulge in the use of parable, the situation is similar to that of a foolish farmer — and, thank Heaven, there are very few in America — wholse farm of several hundred acres lies alongside a broad river. The problems of managing the farm are large and complex. The farmer spends many hours in making hard decisions. What kind of crops should he plant this year? How much of his acreage should be devoted to one crop, and how much to another? How much fertilizer is he going to need, and what is the cost going to be? What kind of expensive equipment will he need to buy, replace, or repair? When will be the best time to plow, and to plant? And when will be the best time to bring in the harvest? If all of his calculations are correct, maybe — just maybe — his income will exceed his investment.

For some strange reason, however, nowhere in his calculations does he consider the fact that a little ways downstream a dam is being built. The builders of the dam have made it abundantly clear that they are going to continue to build the dam higher. The water level in the river is plainly higher than it used to be, and indeed, several farms downstream have already been flooded. But the farmer says, "Whatever happens to those other farms is none of my business. The smart thing to do is to take care of my own, immediate affairs. I have enough problems."

There are not many foolish farmers, but there seem to be a lot of foolish Americans — especially politicians. The builders of Soviet imperialism have made it clear that they intend to build their empire higher. The flood-waters of Soviet dictatorship have already exterminated freedom over one-third of the world's landmass, destroying many countries who (unfortunately for them) were "downstream" from us. Year after year the Soviet empire grows, and freedom diminishes. Yet altogether too many people continue to give all of their time and attention to purely "domestic" issues. The flood waters aren't that far downstream.

WELCOME MAT RETURNS

One immediate benefit from the economic summit conference being held in San Juan, Puerto Rico, by President Ford and six other western leaders, plus some 750 assorted diplomats, aides and security personnel, may be a shot in the arm for the tourism industry in the Caribbean.

The VIP's, of course, will have enjoyed VIP treatment, which is something the ordinary visitor to the area has noticed a scarcity of in recent years.

The Carribean had a record 6.9 million tourists in 1974. Then came the worldwide recession. That, coupled with increasing reports that the natives were less than friendly, resulted in an average drop of 10 per cent in tourism in 1974.

Now the same two factors, or their opposites, are responsible for a substantial recovery which the Caribbean Tourism Association is projecting for this year: a marked improvement in the economy and a positive turnaround in the attitudes of islanders to vacationers.

Facing up to the validity of many tourist complaints, Caribean governments are taking a more active role in people-to-people programs aimed at wooing visitors and making them want to come back.

The Bahamian government, for instance, has introduced a recognition program to reward individuals for their work in the tourism industry, and new resort employe training schools. Guadeloupe has also started employe schools to improve visitor services. Jamaica has taken to radio in its appeals to treat tourists like guests.

One of the most ambitious programs is in Puerto Rico, where the island's Tourism Development Company and the private sector have instituted TIGER (Training in Guest- Employe Relations). By taking the parts of both tourist and employe, participants in the program learn how to cope with typical situations in a way that leaves both the employe and the tourist happy.

So far, well over 1,000 employees, including bellhops, maids and waiters, have taken part in TIGER seminars on Puerto Rico.

BIG AND SMALL ALIKE

If you think inflation hasn't hit the pocketbook of major companies as hard as it has the small businessman or family budget, consider the situation of one of the country's large electric companies. In the first place, earnings are down. Comparing the month of July, 1973 with July of 1974, the drop was 8.33 percent. Gross income was up, but operating expenses and interest charges had increased sharply. Operating expenses in July, 1974, over a year earlier had risen 36.8 percent and interest charges were up 38.06 per cent.

A company spokesman points out that the decline in earnings reflected the serious situation which the company faces in continuing to provide adequate service to its customers. As he put it, "At a time when interest rates are breaking records...electricity demands and our construction needs are also greatest. We need a much improved earnings performance if we are to continue a building program that forces us to spend more than $2 million every working day to meet the future energy needs of our customers." Last year, the company spent $592 million for new facilities required to produce and distribute the electric energy demanded by the industry, homes and businesses in its service area.

Inflation and the economic dislocations squeezing the average small business and family have also weakened the major companies that produce the employment, goods and services by which the nation lives. Electric rates must increase just like the price of everything else. The dangerous inflation that we now experience is, in large measure, the product of excessive levels of government spending and federal budget deficits. Investor-owned private enterprise and the U.S. economic system did not instigate inflation. They are the victims of it just as much as any other group or individual in the country.

CROWD CONDUCTION MOVING RIGHT ALONG

The upswing in gasoline consumption by Americans has sparked renewed interest in the development of low-cost, efficient mass transit systems. But even without the prospect of another oil embargo-energy crisis, the continuing flight against pollution and the need to revitalize the nation's cities should give mass transit top priority, experts in government and business agree.

To encourage imaginative engineering in this area, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Transportation, has announced it will pay up to 80 per cent of the cost of three demonstration transit projects in three cities. Each could cost an estimated $20 million to $50 million. As of last May, 46 cities had submitted letters of interest in the agency's "Downtown People Mover Project."

"People mover" may be a misnomer, since it suggests something like a moving sidewalk. The goal, rather, is that of innovative mass transit systems that do not involve the high construction and operating costs of traditional transportation and which would be attractive and convenient enough to wean people away from their automobiles.

Subways, for example, receive serious consideration only for the largest cities, and these have not always demonstrated unqualified success. Buses and minibuses are more practical for smaller cities, but their service leaves much to be desired in cost, quality and environmental impact.

Of particular interest is a system being constructed for Duke University by Otis Elevator Co. Minicars, riding on a thin film of air rather than wheels and carrying up to 30 passengers per car, will provide automatic, computer-directed service for passengers between two buildings at the university's medical center—something like horizontal elevators.

With variations, the system could be adapted to congested areas in big cities, say company engineers, and be extended as far as 10 miles from city centers to perimeter parking lots, where inbound commuters could leave their automobiles.

Installation costs of such a system, which the company calls Automated Guideway Transit, would be on the order of one-tenth those for subways. Energy use per passenger trip in built-up areas is estimated at from one-tenth to one-thirtieth that of private automobiles.

Two other companies with experience in moving people, Boeing and Rohr, are also in the running and are expected to bid for a piece of the demonstration project action.

THE GREAT MOUTHWASH WAR

Americans spend more than $250,000,000 a year on mouthwash—in excess of a dollar apiece for every last one of us.

This accounts for the current struggle of the U.S. mouthwash titans, Procter & Gamble and Warner-Lambert. Each is in the process of fielding new weapons—that is, new entries in the bid for the mouthwash dollar.

Warner-Lambert, having lambasted Procter & Gamble's Scope as "tasting like soda pop", has been marketing Listermine—which is a "soda pop" type touted for its dandy taste. And Procter & Gamble, after pounding away at Warner-Lambert's Listerine as "mediciny," has come out with a therapeutic oral swish called Extend, evidently intended as the answer to Listerine.

This may not seem important to most of the world, where getting enough to eat is higher on the list of concerns than how one's breath smells. But in this country the stakes are high, so the Great Mouthwash War of '76 rages on.—The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

OSCEOLA—VICTIM OF A 'TRUCE'

Indians have been called "savages" by their pioneer adversaries, but history makes one wonder.

For instance, Osceola, the great Seminole war leader, was captured and arrested while attending a peace parley under a flag of truce during the Second Seminole Indian War (1835-42). There is no recorded instance of the Seminoles violating the sanctity of the white flag of truce during that longest and costliest of Indian wars.

Osceola, who was ill at the time of his capture, died in prison at Fort Moultrie, South Carolina, on January 30, 1838. Before he was buried, Dr. Frederick Weedon, the attending physician, for some reason, cut off the chief's head and had it embalmed. When his three little sons misbehaved, the doctor would punish them by hanging Osceola's head on their bedpost, leaving it there the entire night.

Dr. Weedon's son-in-law eventually sent the head to a Dr. Valentine Mott, a founder of the NYU Medical School and the NY Academy of Medicine. The head was lost in a fire at the Academy in 1866.

SHOULD A DRUNK BE JAILED?

From The Chicago Tribune

The Illinois Senate voted recently to postpone for still another year the effective date for the decriminalization of public drunkeness. The vote followed neither party nor regional lines. Few legislative questions have been more confusing and confused.

The idea of decriminalization is hardly controversial. It has been overwhelmingly accepted in principle by the Legislature. Everyone recognizes that treating drunks as criminals, and sending them off to sober up in institutions no more therapetuic than jails, is not the best policy. Alcoholism is so serious and so common a problem that society needs a public service centered on the care and treatment of alcoholics—a service with a better chance of rehabilitating drunkards and preventing lasting alcholism than jails. For public inebriates, jails are revolving doors out of which people often come in worse condition than when they entered.

The principal reason for postponing once again the implementation of a program to route drunks to detoxification centers rather than jails is that the new system is not yet fully ready to function. There are neighborhoods and counties in which hospitals fear that their emergency rooms will be swamped towns where officials protest that they have no place more appropriate than the nearest jail to take an inebriate.

But will a new system ever be fully ready on any effective date, in 1976, 1977, or later? Extensive if incomplete preparations have been made for putting the new policy into effect July 1—preparations that will be wasted in part if they are not put into use on schedule, and that will be hard to put together again later. Some contend that there may never be a time more favorable than now to embark on a new course that is generally recognized as desirable.

A small amount of money is at issue, too. In question is next year's appropriation for detoxification centers, purchase of care contracts, and transportation services. Some legislators may hope that delay will free money they want for other purposes.

A further complication is a technical flaw in the implementation legislation, a flaw which it is said would be hard or impossible to correct before July 1. In short, the state is not quite ready. But will postponement for a whole year improve its readiness?

One way through the dilemma, neither wrecking systems in place nor plunging ahead with them prematurely, would be to choose a three-month postponement. When a needed reform is almost ready, that could be the best course.

No Hoffa Clue:

Federals probing silence of employer trustees on teamster fund's huge gambling loans

WASHINGTON – Well, it's anniversary time. Jimmy Hoffa has been "disappeared" a year. There's a new murder theory. No conspiracy. Was sort of all in the family (not marital, just organizational).

The bantam Teamster went out to meet some old friends. They told him like it is – shut up. Hoffa told them to drop dead. He did.

Actually, the highest federal investigative authorities say, at this moment they don't know where his remains are. They do believe they'll crack the case before year's end. They're relentlessly tightening the pressure "on local (Michigan) and New Jersey hoods and eventually will crack them." But the news stories of "what we're suppose to know are thumbsucking."

Congressional investigating committees are threatening to get into the act but little happens. Last Sept. 25, New York Rep. Mario Biaggi tried to stir things up by sending almost every Congressman a copy of Hoffa's posthumous autobiography.

"Given the possibility of a congressional investigation into the Hoffa disappearance, I personally feel that all members would benefit by hearing Hoffa's story first-hand. With best wishes, "wrote Biaggi in a note accompanying the free book.

But Hoffa's dead, disinterested and disintegrated, whatever Biaggi meant. Now the interest is in the competition for the rights to the claim of first full exposure of the misbegotten Teamsters' $1.4 billion Chicago-based Central States (etc.) pension fund. And there's talk of probing the little-known billion-dollar teamsters' welfare fund there, too.

All this has taken a strange twist. Now the Labor Department backed up by the Justic Department's Crinimal Division, wants to know where the eight employer trustees have been all the time the $700 or 800 million was being put into strange real estate loans.

In addition to the Labor Department's special unit directed by the tight-lipped Lawrence Lippe, questions are being asked of employers by the newest seluthing operation, OEBS – the Office of Employee Benefits Security. Its agents are all over the place. They're X-raying the pension fund books of at least four or five other big industries.

As for the Central States Teamsters fund, labor Department officials point to eight trucking industry representatives who must have had the collective voice of a turtle, as they watched the fund pour out hundreds of millions – in loans which don't appear to have been amortized or to have yielded any interest.

So government men now demand to know why no loud protest or vetoes all these years from the employer trustees on the joint 16-man labor-management board who represnt: the National Automobile Transporter Labor council; the Motor Carriers Employers Conference, Central States; the Southwest Operators Assn.; the Southeastern Area Motor Carriers Labor Relations Assn.; the Cartage Employers Management Assn.; The Cleveland Draymen Assn. Inc. and the Northern Ohio Motor Truckers Assn., Inc.

These are listed in the Labor Department records.

This is mighty serious and could be expensive for the trustees and huge consortiums of truckers. The Labor-Justice Interdepartmental Committee is "looking for a specific action which can be questioned. Since under ERISA, we have the fiduciary responsiblility, prudence is what we look for."

This, according to one outside source. The entire Labor Department is under tight orders not to speak to the press.

"They're looking into the whole damn thing to appropriate remedies." said my source. "Their heavy emphasis is in the context of looking at the process and methodologies which the fund has followed. Meaning, have there been imprudent investments?"

So , with apologies to the French Revolution, I believe the fantastic investigation is operating on the solgan of "Fraternity, Prudentiality, 'Fiduciarity.' " Meaning, that if the union brohters' cash wasn't carefully invested, the trustees should note that U.S. Secretary of Labor, Bill Usery, has warned of "the concept of personal liability for persons who breach their fiduciary duties. A fiduciary trustee can be ordered to make good any loss suffered by the plan by his activity in violation of the fiduciary standards. He also can be made to restore any profits that he gained through activity in vilation of his fiduciary obligations."

And what do Usery and his special agents have in mind? There is, for example, the recent $100 million loan to California's young Allen Glick before anyone really knew what made the previously moderate-incomed chap click. He bought four Las Vegas casinos with the manna. Now, Nevada state gambling officials charge that some $7 million has been embezzled from slot machine revenues. No skimming. Officials warn of embezzlement. Who stole? Why did Glick get $100 million?

And what of the high-class California mortician who claims he had to pay $200,000 in "points" to get a $1.3 million Teamsters' fund loan?

Also there apparently were no real records kept of the 385,000 teamsters for whose retirement coverage employers were pouring in over $1 million daily. Some say there was "no" file maintained of the truckdrivers' names and addresses . Why?

And the federal probers now plan to ask the truckers' associations why their trustees were not battling the nulti-million- dollar loans to unknown and shady characters and why the mammoth fund was in such appalling shape technically and financially.

Why no public outcry by the employer trustees? "Too much fraternity and not enough prudentiality and 'fiduciarity'?" the investigators will ask.

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission is supposed to protect the public from rigged prices. Yet it has dropped a case that its staff says would have brought down the prices of automobile accessories.

The staff developed evidence that Amoco, Exxon, Sohio and Standard Oil of California were restraining competition. The four oil giants jointly own the Atlas Supply Co., which sells tires, batteries and accessories.

Through Atlas, the oil companies allegedly were able to manipulate prices. They accomplished this, according to confidential FTC memos, by restricting the distribution of Atlas accessories and keeping them out of the hands of discounters.

The FTC staff wanted to break the tight hold of the four oil companies on Atlas products. This would have increased competition, resulting in "lower prices to consumers on the two largest volume products, tires and batteries," states one confidential memo.

Yet the FTC, despite the strong objections of staff investigators, refused to take the four oil companies to court. Instead, the FTC filed a "Part II" complaint against the quartet. This was a cozy backroom procedure which permitted the companies to conduct secret negotiations and to seek an out-of-court settlement without painful publicity.

The closed-door negotiations dragged on for several months, but the FTC staff was unable to bring the oil companies to terms. One FTC proposal would have made Atlas products available to independent wholesalers, who could then compete with the four oil giants for the business of retail dealers.

Another proposal would have barred the four companies from assigning their chief marketing officials to serve together on the Atlas board. The board is now dominated by the Big Four's marketing specialists, who have developed and implemented anticompetitive practices.

But the oil barons, in the secrecy of the FTC backrooms, refused to cooperate. A confidential memo, summarizing the negotiations, reported bluntly: "The respondents' final settlement offer includes only token concessions ... and would fail to prevent Atlas from continuing to be a medium for collusion."

Frustrated over the oilmen's unwillingness to compromise, the FTC staff broke off negotiations. A sharply worded memo, signed by several high-level staff members, recommended that the FTC file a formal complaint in court to break up Atlas.

"On any scale," declares the memo, "the anticompetitive aspects inherent in this combination outweigh any possible benefits ... Divestiture is an essential remedy."

But the FTC, like other regulatory agencies, is overrun by the lawyers and lobbyists of the corporations that are supposed to be regulated. The commissioners, their actions hidden from the public, refused to file suit against the four oil giants.

This made the staff so angry that it recommended dropping the whole matter and the FTC voted to close the file on the case.

Army vs. Indians: Classified Army documents describe an attempt by the Army brass to take 757 acres from the Nisqually Indians.

Ironically, the leader of this landgrab, Maj. Gen. Volney Warner, was a leading participant in the 1973 Wounded Knee crisis.

There is an even deeper irony. The land Warner wants is the former hunting ground of the famed Nisqually hero, Chief Leschi. He led the gallant Nisqually tribe in its last uprising against the Army in 1850. For his heroic but futile stand, Leschi was hanged by the Army.

Subsequently, the tribe was confined to a 4,700-acre reservation in Washington state. All but the 757 acres were grabbed by the Army in 1918. Now the Army wants the remaining Nisqually land for a training area and firing range.

The classified documents show the Army wanted to expropriate the acreage in 1972 and 1973. The move was postponed, however, "in view of the Wounded Knee controversy." The memo, signed by Maj. Gen. John Henlon, then commander of Fort Lewis, Wash., suggested: "We should await a more propitious time."

Again this year, the Army Engineers in another classified memo cited the "controversial nature" of the takeover and postponed it "at this time."

But Gen. Warner of Wounded Knee fame has now assumed command of Fort Lewis. He not only wants to confiscate the Indian acreage but he wants to negotiate with federal officials rather than talk directly with the Nisqually.

The Indians have complained to us that they are being harassed, meanwhile, by the Army. They charge the Army has lobbed live artillery shells over their reservation, has buzzed Nisqually fishermen with helicopters and has invaded the reservation in tanks and trucks.

Footnote: Gen. Warner confirmed to us that he wants the land but says the Indians' protests mean he probably will fail. He swears he has cut off artillery firing over the reservation. His tanks and trucks crossed Indian land only once, he said, during an emergency. He denies completely that his helicopters have buzzed the Indians.

THE PARABLE OF THE FOOLISH FARMER

Americans — and, more especially, American politicians — are inclined to think much more about domestic problems than those on the international level. In a typical survey, one Representative in Washington recently asked his constituents for their opinions on busing, crime, government spending, economy, energy, education and environment. All very important, yes. Unfortunately, not one question was asked concerning our military strength, or our foreign policy, and certainly no question on the subject of the world balance of power.

If we may indulge in the use of parable, the situation is similar to that of a foolish farmer — and, thank Heaven, there are very few in America — wholse farm of several hundred acres lies alongside a broad river. The problems of managing the farm are large and complex. The farmer spends many hours in making hard decisions. What kind of crops should he plant this year? How much of his acreage should be devoted to one crop, and how much to another? How much fertilizer is he going to need, and what is the cost going to be? What kind of expensive equipment will he need to buy, replace, or repair? When will be the best time to plow, and to plant? And when will be the best time to bring in the harvest? If all of his calculations are correct, maybe — just maybe — his income will exceed his investment.

For some strange reason, however, nowhere in his calculations does he consider the fact that a little ways downstream a dam is being built. The builders of the dam have made it abundantly clear that they are going to continue to build the dam higher. The water level in the river is plainly higher than it used to be, and indeed, several farms downstream have already been flooded. But the farmer says, "Whatever happens to those other farms is none of my business. The smart thing to do is to take care of my own, immediate affairs. I have enough problems."

There are not many foolish farmers, but there seem to be a lot of foolish Americans — especially politicians. The builders of Soviet imperialism have made it clear that they intend to build their empire higher. The flood-waters of Soviet dictatorship have already exterminated freedom over one-third of the world's landmass, destroying many countries who (unfortunately for them) were "downstream" from us. Year after year the Soviet empire grows, and freedom diminishes. Yet altogether too many people continue to give all of their time and attention to purely "domestic" issues. The flood waters aren't that far downstream.

WELCOME MAT RETURNS

One immediate benefit from the economic summit conference being held in San Juan, Puerto Rico, by President Ford and six other western leaders, plus some 750 assorted diplomats, aides and security personnel, may be a shot in the arm for the tourism industry in the Caribbean.

The VIP's, of course, will have enjoyed VIP treatment, which is something the ordinary visitor to the area has noticed a scarcity of in recent years.

The Carribean had a record 6.9 million tourists in 1974. Then came the worldwide recession. That, coupled with increasing reports that the natives were less than friendly, resulted in an average drop of 10 per cent in tourism in 1974.

Now the same two factors, or their opposites, are responsible for a substantial recovery which the Caribbean Tourism Association is projecting for this year: a marked improvement in the economy and a positive turnaround in the attitudes of islanders to vacationers.

Facing up to the validity of many tourist complaints, Caribean governments are taking a more active role in people-to-people programs aimed at wooing visitors and making them want to come back.

The Bahamian government, for instance, has introduced a recognition program to reward individuals for their work in the tourism industry, and new resort employe training schools. Guadeloupe has also started employe schools to improve visitor services. Jamaica has taken to radio in its appeals to treat tourists like guests.

One of the most ambitious programs is in Puerto Rico, where the island's Tourism Development Company and the private sector have instituted TIGER (Training in Guest- Employe Relations). By taking the parts of both tourist and employe, participants in the program learn how to cope with typical situations in a way that leaves both the employe and the tourist happy.

So far, well over 1,000 employees, including bellhops, maids and waiters, have taken part in TIGER seminars on Puerto Rico.

BIG AND SMALL ALIKE

If you think inflation hasn't hit the pocketbook of major companies as hard as it has the small businessman or family budget, consider the situation of one of the country's large electric companies. In the first place, earnings are down. Comparing the month of July, 1973 with July of 1974, the drop was 8.33 percent. Gross income was up, but operating expenses and interest charges had increased sharply. Operating expenses in July, 1974, over a year earlier had risen 36.8 percent and interest charges were up 38.06 per cent.

A company spokesman points out that the decline in earnings reflected the serious situation which the company faces in continuing to provide adequate service to its customers. As he put it, "At a time when interest rates are breaking records...electricity demands and our construction needs are also greatest. We need a much improved earnings performance if we are to continue a building program that forces us to spend more than $2 million every working day to meet the future energy needs of our customers." Last year, the company spent $592 million for new facilities required to produce and distribute the electric energy demanded by the industry, homes and businesses in its service area.

Inflation and the economic dislocations squeezing the average small business and family have also weakened the major companies that produce the employment, goods and services by which the nation lives. Electric rates must increase just like the price of everything else. The dangerous inflation that we now experience is, in large measure, the product of excessive levels of government spending and federal budget deficits. Investor-owned private enterprise and the U.S. economic system did not instigate inflation. They are the victims of it just as much as any other group or individual in the country.

The upswing in gasoline consumption by Americans has sparked renewed interest in the development of low-cost, efficient mass transit systems. But even without the prospect of another oil embargo-energy crisis, the continuing flight against pollution and the need to revitalize the nation's cities should give mass transit top priority, experts in government and business agree.

To encourage imaginative engineering in this area, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Transportation, has announced it will pay up to 80 per cent of the cost of three demonstration transit projects in three cities. Each could cost an estimated $20 million to $50 million. As of last May, 46 cities had submitted letters of interest in the agency's "Downtown People Mover Project."

"People mover" may be a misnomer, since it suggests something like a moving sidewalk. The goal, rather, is that of innovative mass transit systems that do not involve the high construction and operating costs of traditional transportation and which would be attractive and convenient enough to wean people away from their automobiles.

Subways, for example, receive serious consideration only for the largest cities, and these have not always demonstrated unqualified success. Buses and minibuses are more practical for smaller cities, but their service leaves much to be desired in cost, quality and environmental impact.

Of particular interest is a system being constructed for Duke University by Otis Elevator Co. Minicars, riding on a thin film of air rather than wheels and carrying up to 30 passengers per car, will provide automatic, computer-directed service for passengers between two buildings at the university's medical center—something like horizontal elevators.

With variations, the system could be adapted to congested areas in big cities, say company engineers, and be extended as far as 10 miles from city centers to perimeter parking lots, where inbound commuters could leave their automobiles.

Installation costs of such a system, which the company calls Automated Guideway Transit, would be on the order of one-tenth those for subways. Energy use per passenger trip in built-up areas is estimated at from one-tenth to one-thirtieth that of private automobiles.

Two other companies with experience in moving people, Boeing and Rohr, are also in the running and are expected to bid for a piece of the demonstration project action.

THE GREAT MOUTHWASH WAR

Americans spend more than $250,000,000 a year on mouthwash—in excess of a dollar apiece for every last one of us.

This accounts for the current struggle of the U.S. mouthwash titans, Procter & Gamble and Warner-Lambert. Each is in the process of fielding new weapons—that is, new entries in the bid for the mouthwash dollar.

Warner-Lambert, having lambasted Procter & Gamble's Scope as "tasting like soda pop", has been marketing Listermine—which is a "soda pop" type touted for its dandy taste. And Procter & Gamble, after pounding away at Warner-Lambert's Listerine as "mediciny," has come out with a therapeutic oral swish called Extend, evidently intended as the answer to Listerine.

This may not seem important to most of the world, where getting enough to eat is higher on the list of concerns than how one's breath smells. But in this country the stakes are high, so the Great Mouthwash War of '76 rages on.—The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

OSCEOLA—VICTIM OF A 'TRUCE'

Indians have been called "savages" by their pioneer adversaries, but history makes one wonder.

For instance, Osceola, the great Seminole war leader, was captured and arrested while attending a peace parley under a flag of truce during the Second Seminole Indian War (1835-42). There is no recorded instance of the Seminoles violating the sanctity of the white flag of truce during that longest and costliest of Indian wars.

Osceola, who was ill at the time of his capture, died in prison at Fort Moultrie, South Carolina, on January 30, 1838. Before he was buried, Dr. Frederick Weedon, the attending physician, for some reason, cut off the chief's head and had it embalmed. When his three little sons misbehaved, the doctor would punish them by hanging Osceola's head on their bedpost, leaving it there the entire night.

Dr. Weedon's son-in-law eventually sent the head to a Dr. Valentine Mott, a founder of the NYU Medical School and the NY Academy of Medicine. The head was lost in a fire at the Academy in 1866.

SHOULD A DRUNK BE JAILED?

From The Chicago Tribune

The Illinois Senate voted recently to postpone for still another year the effective date for the decriminalization of public drunkeness. The vote followed neither party nor regional lines. Few legislative questions have been more confusing and confused.

The idea of decriminalization is hardly controversial. It has been overwhelmingly accepted in principle by the Legislature. Everyone recognizes that treating drunks as criminals, and sending them off to sober up in institutions no more therapetuic than jails, is not the best policy. Alcoholism is so serious and so common a problem that society needs a public service centered on the care and treatment of alcoholics—a service with a better chance of rehabilitating drunkards and preventing lasting alcholism than jails. For public inebriates, jails are revolving doors out of which people often come in worse condition than when they entered.

The principal reason for postponing once again the implementation of a program to route drunks to detoxification centers rather than jails is that the new system is not yet fully ready to function. There are neighborhoods and counties in which hospitals fear that their emergency rooms will be swamped towns where officials protest that they have no place more appropriate than the nearest jail to take an inebriate.

But will a new system ever be fully ready on any effective date, in 1976, 1977, or later? Extensive if incomplete preparations have been made for putting the new policy into effect July 1—preparations that will be wasted in part if they are not put into use on schedule, and that will be hard to put together again later. Some contend that there may never be a time more favorable than now to embark on a new course that is generally recognized as desirable.

A small amount of money is at issue, too. In question is next year's appropriation for detoxification centers, purchase of care contracts, and transportation services. Some legislators may hope that delay will free money they want for other purposes.

A further complication is a technical flaw in the implementation legislation, a flaw which it is said would be hard or impossible to correct before July 1. In short, the state is not quite ready. But will postponement for a whole year improve its readiness?

One way through the dilemma, neither wrecking systems in place nor plunging ahead with them prematurely, would be to choose a three-month postponement. When a needed reform is almost ready, that could be the best course.

Inside Labor

No Hoffa Clue:

Federals probing silence of employer trustees on teamster fund's huge gambling loans

WASHINGTON – Well, it's anniversary time. Jimmy Hoffa has been "disappeared" a year. There's a new murder theory. No conspiracy. Was sort of all in the family (not marital, just organizational).

The bantam Teamster went out to meet some old friends. They told him like it is – shut up. Hoffa told them to drop dead. He did.

Actually, the highest federal investigative authorities say, at this moment they don't know where his remains are. They do believe they'll crack the case before year's end. They're relentlessly tightening the pressure "on local (Michigan) and New Jersey hoods and eventually will crack them." But the news stories of "what we're suppose to know are thumbsucking."

Congressional investigating committees are threatening to get into the act but little happens. Last Sept. 25, New York Rep. Mario Biaggi tried to stir things up by sending almost every Congressman a copy of Hoffa's posthumous autobiography.

"Given the possibility of a congressional investigation into the Hoffa disappearance, I personally feel that all members would benefit by hearing Hoffa's story first-hand. With best wishes, "wrote Biaggi in a note accompanying the free book.

But Hoffa's dead, disinterested and disintegrated, whatever Biaggi meant. Now the interest is in the competition for the rights to the claim of first full exposure of the misbegotten Teamsters' $1.4 billion Chicago-based Central States (etc.) pension fund. And there's talk of probing the little-known billion-dollar teamsters' welfare fund there, too.

All this has taken a strange twist. Now the Labor Department backed up by the Justic Department's Crinimal Division, wants to know where the eight employer trustees have been all the time the $700 or 800 million was being put into strange real estate loans.

In addition to the Labor Department's special unit directed by the tight-lipped Lawrence Lippe, questions are being asked of employers by the newest seluthing operation, OEBS – the Office of Employee Benefits Security. Its agents are all over the place. They're X-raying the pension fund books of at least four or five other big industries.

As for the Central States Teamsters fund, labor Department officials point to eight trucking industry representatives who must have had the collective voice of a turtle, as they watched the fund pour out hundreds of millions – in loans which don't appear to have been amortized or to have yielded any interest.

So government men now demand to know why no loud protest or vetoes all these years from the employer trustees on the joint 16-man labor-management board who represnt: the National Automobile Transporter Labor council; the Motor Carriers Employers Conference, Central States; the Southwest Operators Assn.; the Southeastern Area Motor Carriers Labor Relations Assn.; the Cartage Employers Management Assn.; The Cleveland Draymen Assn. Inc. and the Northern Ohio Motor Truckers Assn., Inc.

These are listed in the Labor Department records.

This is mighty serious and could be expensive for the trustees and huge consortiums of truckers. The Labor-Justice Interdepartmental Committee is "looking for a specific action which can be questioned. Since, under ERISA, we have the fiduciary responsiblility, prudence is what we look for."

This, according to one outside source. The entire Labor Department is under tight orders not to speak to the press.

"They're looking into the whole damn thing to appropriate remedies." said my source. "Their heavy emphasis is in the context of looking at the process and methodologies which the fund has followed. Meaning, have there been imprudent investments?"

So , with apologies to the French Revolution, I believe the fantastic investigation is operating on the solgan of "Fraternity, Prudentiality, 'Fiduciarity.'" Meaning, that if the union brohters' cash wasn't carefully invested, the trustees should note that U.S. Secretary of Labor, Bill Usery, has warned of "the concept of personal liability for persons who breach their fiduciary duties. A fiduciary trustee can be ordered to make good any loss suffered by the plan by his activity in violation of the fiduciary standards. He also can be made to restore any profits that he gained through activity in vilation of his fiduciary obligations."

And what do Usery and his special agents have in mind? There is, for example, the recent $100 million loan to California's young Allen Glick before anyone really knew what made the previously moderate-incomed chap click. He bought four Las Vegas casinos with the manna. Now, Nevada state gambling officials charge that some $7 million has been embezzled from slot machine revenues. No skimming. Officials warn of embezzlement. Who stole? Why did Glick get $100 million?

And what of the high-class California mortician who claims he had to pay $200,000 in "points" to get a $1.3 million Teamsters' fund loan?

Also there apparently were no real records kept of the 385,000 teamsters for whose retirement coverage employers were pouring in over $1 million daily. Some say there was "no" file maintained of the truckdrivers' names and addresses . Why?

And the federal probers now plan to ask the truckers' associations why their trustees were not battling the nulti-million- dollar loans to unknown and shady characters and why the mammoth fund was in such appalling shape technically and financially.

Why no public outcry by the employer trustees? "Too much fraternity and not enough prudentiality and 'fiduciarity'?" the investigators will ask.

Missouri's low-income women not getting family planning help

ST. LOUIS — Some 227,900 poor and near-poor women in Missouri are estimated to need family planning help, but 121,800 of these—more than half the total—remained without access to services by mid-1974.

Counties which appear to have the greatest need for expansion of services are Texas, Washington, Franklin, Platte, and Cass. For the state as a whole, meeting the needs of all poor and near-poor women would require total spending on family planning of $11.4-$13.7 million—about three times 1974 expenditures.

These are among the principal findings of a study of family planning needs and services in the state of Missouri, prepared under a research grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation as part of a nationwide series by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, research and development division of the Plannted Parenthood Federation of America.

Highlights of the study findings include the following:

Some $4 million was spent by public and voluntary agencies on family planning in 1974. An additional $7.4-$9.7 million will be required if all poor and near-poor women in needs of services are to receive them.

—More than four-fifths of 1974 expenditures came from federal sources (the majority through project grants, with the rest coming from reimbursement programs such as Medicaid). The remainder came through private contributions to agencies such as Planned Parenthood. Almost none came from state and local government funds.

Some 82,000 women (86 per cent of them poor or near-poor) received family planning services from clinics in 1974—more than four times the number served just six years earlier (19,400). Preliminary data for 1975 indicate a total clinic caseload of 87,900—an increase of 7 per cent over 1974.

An additional 35,800 poor and near-poor women were estimated to have received family planning services from private physicians in 1974.

Some 93,800 teenagers (of all income levels) were estimated to need family planning help. As of 1974, three in five of these (54,500) remained unserved.

Dr. Philip Lee, chairman of the Institute's National Council and a former undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, commented today that the study "discloses continuing and serious discrimination in the availability of family planning services to various groups in our society. We hope that it will be used widely as a practical blueprint for program expansion by state planners, local health officials and all who are interested in making the goal of reproductive freedom a reality for all persons, whatever their economic status, place of residence, or age."

There is no harm in putting a little zing in the bedroom performance. Husbands should not need to go outside of marriage for excitement. How sad that so many wives have been warped by man-hating mothers who taught them sex is a "duty." Poor things. Sign me -- At Home With All Kinds

Dear At Home: As a former member of the oldest profession you are certainly qualified to speak on this subject in a way very few can. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I need to know if my girlfriend and I are related.

Her brother married my sister. Since I am an uncle of their son and my girl friend is the little boy's aunt, it does make us relatives, doesn't it? She says no.

I'm worried about marrying a relative because our children might not be right mentally.

I hope you can figure out what I'm trying to say. With a high-school education this is as good as I can do. -- Andy

Dear Andy: You are not blood relatives, just kin by marriage. Go ahead and marry the girl, if this is the only thing about her that bothers you.

Dear Ann: I'm 30 years old, the mother of several children. I have a severe case of varicose veins, only mine are splattered-looking, close to the surface.

My family doctor said nothing could be done so I went to another doctor. He injected medicine into one of the veins which he called a "feeder." It made a large scar an didn't help. Is there any way I can get rid of these ugly veins? I love swimming and I hate the way I look. -- D.N.

Dear D.N.: I checked with several physicaans and the consensus is as follows: The veins sound too small to be stripped. Injections will not help. Buy Covermark (usually found in drugstores) and if it's properly applied the veins will not show. Yes, you can go swimming. It's waterproof.

Dear Ann: What can we do to dispel the myth that "nice girls don't get raped and bad girls shouldn't complain"?

My aunt was raped last week and the way she was treated at the emergency room of the hospital was outrageous. She decided not to press charges. Thanks for your help. -- Stumped

Dear S.: Your aunt should have pressed charges -- regardless. She should also have reported her hospital abusers to the head of the institution. Most emergency room personnel are wonderfully sympathetic. Your aunt ran into a bummer.

Home canning hints to avoid spoilage

A record-breaking 19 to 23 million Americans will take to the stove and the chopping boards to can foods at home this year. For most, the practice will represent a slight savings in money and tremendous satisfaction in eating their own produce long after the harvest is past. Others will benefit from substantial savings and a good start in feeding their families for the year. For a few, who use inadequate canning materials and fail to follow directions faithfully, home canning may mean grave health danger and possible death.

Health and consumer expert Jean Carper brings the reader up-to-date in safe home-canning methods in the August issue of Reader's Digest. Methods have changed; procedures once thought safe are no longer thought to be so; newer strains of some vegetables—especially tomatoes—are more susceptible to spoilage and must be treated with care.

Above all, Carper declares, get reliable instructions (the U.S. Department of Agriculture is a dependable source, but there are others) and follow them to the letter. Don't improvise, don't alter recipes, don't use shortcuts and use proper equipment.

Failure to follow this advice can lead to food spilage or contamination with the toxin that causes botulism. "Eating only one spoonful of botulism-contaminated food can be fatal," she says, pointing out that it is a highly heat-resistant bacteria. For high-acid foods—pickles, relishes and fruits—a boiling-water bath is advised; for low-acid foods (including some varieties of tomatoes) a pressure canner is considered safest.

"If you do everything right, you shouldn't have more than one out of every 100,000 jars spoil," Carper writes. And that should take you through more than one summer. Enjoy your food and enjoy canning. But follow directions carefully—your health is important.

Missouri's low-income women not getting family planning help

ST. LOUIS — Some 227,900 poor and near-poor women in Missouri are estimated to need family planning help, but 121,800 of these—more than half the total—remained without access to services by mid-1974.

Counties which appear to have the greatest need for expansion of services are Texas, Washington, Franklin, Platte, and Cass. For the state as a whole, meeting the needs of all poor and near-poor women would require total spending on family planning of $11.4-$13.7 million—about three times 1974 expenditures.

These are among the principal findings of a study of family planning needs and services in the state of Missouri, prepared under a research grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation as part of a nationwide series by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, research and development division of the Plannted Parenthood Federation of America.

Highlights of the study findings include the following:

Some $4 million was spent by public and voluntary agencies on family planning in 1974. An additional $7.4-$9.7 million will be required if all poor and near-poor women in needs of services are to receive them.

—More than four-fifths of 1974 expenditures came from federal sources (the majority through project grants, with the rest coming from reimbursement programs such as Medicaid). The remainder came through private contributions to agencies such as Planned Parenthood. Almost none came from state and local government funds.

Some 82,000 women (86 per cent of them poor or near-poor) received family planning services from clinics in 1974—more than four times the number served just six years earlier (19,400). Preliminary data for 1975 indicate a total clinic caseload of 87,900—an increase of 7 per cent over 1974.

An additional 35,800 poor and near-poor women were estimated to have received family planning services from private physicians in 1974.

Some 93,800 teenagers (of all income levels) were estimated to need family planning help. As of 1974, three in five of these (54,500) remained unserved.

Dr. Philip Lee, chairman of the Institute's National Council and a former undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, commented today that the study "discloses continuing and serious discrimination in the availability of family planning services to various groups in our society. We hope that it will be used widely as a practical blueprint for program expansion by state planners, local health officials and all who are interested in making the goal of reproductive freedom a reality for all persons, whatever their economic status, place of residence, or age."

Ann Landers

Former call girl says man's request normal

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will let me reply to "Bedroom Trouble Up North." He's the man who asked his wife to wear black nylon stockings and a garter belt to bed. The poor fellow needs to be told he's not nuts.

Dear B.T.: I know how frustrated you must feel. Your request was reasonable, honest and healthy, not in the least sick. I admire the loyalty you demonstrated by seeking advice from Ann Landers. In your letter you said you didn't want to "run around," just wanted to know if your request was weird.

As a former call girl I've met hundreds of men who needed an outlet for frustration, without making a commitment. I also met men who were bothered by feelings of abnormality because they were turned on by simple things like black stockings and garter belts. I know the scene well. Their uptight, small-minded wives had laid guilt traps for these imaginative, normal males.

There is no harm in putting a little zing in the bedroom performance. Husbands should not need to go outside of marriage for excitement. How sad that so many wives have been warped by man-hating mothers who taught them sex is a "duty." Poor things. Sign me -- At Home With All Kinds

Ste. Genevieve wins

Saints' streak ends at ten

Don Buechting wants to be a starting pitcher for Southeast Missouri State University next Spring and, if Sunday afternoon's performance by the big righthander was any indication of what he can do, the man's a shoo-in. Buechting, pronounced "beast-ing," shackled the Sikeston Saints hitters with a four-hitter, beating them 3-0 at VFW stadium. Three first inning runs were all Ste. Genevieve could manage off Saints starter Mike Foster, but they proved to be enough as their own pitcher mowed the host team down inning by inning. The Saints retained their second place standing in the league with a 9-6 mark. Three teams---Ste. Genevieve, Perryville and Anna--are at, or just below, the .500 mark. All three have a shot at the playoffs.

Buechting, a graduate of Festus high school, gave up three hits to the Saints in the first two innings, then shut them down with only a fifth-inning Mitch Walker single the rest of the way. Sikeston managed to get only two baserunners as far as third.

Foster, a hard-throwing righthander, received a rough introduction to Bi-State baseball. Rick Lucas led off with a single and swiped second. When his brother Butch Lucas singled to right, Rick Lucas scored on an outfield bobble. A hit by Mike Kistner gave the visitors runners on first and second, but Foster fired three fastballs past the Yanks' cleanup man, Zoellner. Sikeston had a chance to get out of it when Ralph Kuenn flied out to right, but Ron Bollinger ripped a two-out, two-strike pitch off the fence in right-center for a two-run double and a 3-0 lead. Foster shut out the Yanks through the last eight innings, but the damage was done.

The loss broke the Saints' winning streak at ten games. In the league, the team has five games left, two that were rained out at Herrin on Saturday and three with league-leader Cape. With three wins against the Capahas, the Saints should still have a shot at the league title. Cape held a 12-4 record going into their Sunday game.

The two leaders will meet Wednesday night at V.F.W. Stadium at 8 p.m. Righthander Don Miller goes for Sikeston against lefthander Trae Hastings of Cape. Neither hurler has lost a game this year.

Birds cash in on errors

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If turnabout is fair play, it still ranks as unpleasant for the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs, recipients of five unearned runs during their 8-4 series opening triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, Sunday returned the favor and salvaged little solace from their earlier fortune.

"Both were easy chances," Manager Jim Marshall moaned in reference to two errors by second baseman Manny Trillo awarding the Cards a 4-3 victory.

"I thought our pitcher pitched better than theirs," Marshall added disconsolately, "but when you don't make the plays that's what happens. You get beat."

Strong Cubs pitching to which Marshall alluded was that provided by right-hander Rick Reuschel, 9-8, who permitted St. Louis four singles in seven innings.

Two of the hits came after Trillo's first boot, however, and accounted for a 2-0 Cards lead in the fourth.

Three innings later, while Chicago was still struggling with one hit —Reuschel's double — off Lynn McGlothen, 9-9, St. Louis' Don Kessinger stroked a leadoff single and soon afterward circled the bases on Trillo's second miscue.

Rookie Hector Cruz also advanced to third when Trillo missed Reuschel's throw to first on his sacrifice bunt and scored on McGlothen's one-out sacrifice fly.

Cruz' run established a 4-0 Cards advantage and the margin held up against a five-hit Cubs uprising in the eighth finally quelled by reliever Al Hrabosky.

St. Louis' win, producing a split in the four-game series, came without resumption of a bean ball battle which occurred the previous night.

During that episode, pitchers Bob Forsch of the Cards and Bill Bonham of Chicago were fined $50 each and St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst was ejected before his club prevailed 12-3.

Bill Madlock of the Cubs, who was struck twice by Forsch deliveries, sat out Sunday's game with a slight headache from a pitch which glanced off his batting helmet.

"I'll be all right, but I still wonder whey they're throwing at me," said Madlock, the Chicago third baseman and leading hitter on his team's roster at .313.

Simmons teed off at some of Cards' fans

ST. LOUIS (AP) — High-priced catcher Ted Simmons has unburdened himself of a few complaints and hopes dyed-in-the-wool St. Louis Cardinal fans will bear with him.

Simmons, whose $600,000 contract for three years is tops in Cards history, sounded off over the weekend and Sunday tempered only slightly a blast against fair weather friends.

"St. Louis is not a bad sports town, but I'm not saying it's a good sports town," declared Simmons, whose scathing criticism appeared in a Sunday Post-Dispatch story.

"It goes beyond winning and losing," he said. "There must be a sense of willingness to understand. There are some good fans, but by the same token there are some who are content to sit back and watch the box-scores and listen to the 6 o'clock show. That upsets me and it does some of my teammates."

Simmons emphasized that a major part of his criticism was leveled not at fans attending games but at those who restrict their involvement to remarks phoned in to a radio station's nightly talk show.

"Maybe it's deserved," he said of criticism leveled at the struggling Cards, "but too many of them don't know what's going on.

"A week ago we got our second baseman (Mike Tyson) hurt and were trying to fill his spot with a reserve. I was playing third base, not because I wanted to but because I'd been asked."

Preceding Simmons' remarks, St. Louis lost 8-4 last Thursday to the Chicago Cubs while he was playing third base and committed two of the club's five errors.

"I was playing first base and Keith (Hernandez) started hitting," he explained. "Hector (Cruz) wasn't hitting and they wanted to give him a rest. They figured if they could take the pressure off him for a couple of days it might help. While I'm in the lineup, frankly, it gives us a little better attack."

PLOTS RENTED AT P-PATCH

SEATTLE (AP) — The P-Patch program began three years ago when a small group conceived the idea of using the abandoned section of an old truck farm as a public pea patch. It is called the P-Patch in honor of Rainie Picardo who once operated the old truck farm.

Last year, P-Patches expanded to 12 sites and plans call for expansion to 15 sites. The patches cover more than eight acres.

"I think," said Edith Walden, "that a lot of the response can be traced to the present economic situation — you can grow more on one of our plots than you can in most back yards and for less money.

Ste. Genevieve wins

Saints' streak ends at ten

Don Buechting wants to be a starting pitcher for Southeast Missouri State University next Spring and, if Sunday afternoon's performance by the big righthander was any indication of what he can do, the man's a shoo-in. Buechting, pronounced "beast-ing," shackled the Sikeston Saints hitters with a four-hitter, beating them 3-0 at VFW stadium. Three first inning runs were all Ste. Genevieve could manage off Saints starter Mike Foster, but they proved to be enough as their own pitcher mowed the host team down inning by inning. The Saints retained their second place standing in the league with a 9-6 mark. Three teams---Ste. Genevieve, Perryville and Anna--are at, or just below, the .500 mark. All three have a shot at the playoffs.

Buechting, a graduate of Festus high school, gave up three hits to the Saints in the first two innings, then shut them down with only a fifth-inning Mitch Walker single the rest of the way. Sikeston managed to get only two baserunners as far as third.

Foster, a hard-throwing righthander, received a rough introduction to Bi-State baseball. Rick Lucas led off with a single and swiped second. When his brother Butch Lucas singled to right, Rick Lucas scored on an outfield bobble. A hit by Mike Kistner gave the visitors runners on first and second, but Foster fired three fastballs past the Yanks' cleanup man, Zoellner. Sikeston had a chance to get out of it when Ralph Kuenn flied out to right, but Ron Bollinger ripped a two-out, two-strike pitch off the fence in right-center for a two-run double and a 3-0 lead. Foster shut out the Yanks through the last eight innings, but the damage was done.

The loss broke the Saints' winning streak at ten games. In the league, the team has five games left, two that were rained out at Herrin on Saturday and three with league-leader Cape. With three wins against the Capahas, the Saints should still have a shot at the league title. Cape held a 12-4 record going into their Sunday game.

The two leaders will meet Wednesday night at V.F.W. Stadium at 8 p.m. Righthander Don Miller goes for Sikeston against lefthander Trae Hastings of Cape. Neither hurler has lost a game this year.

Birds cash in on errors

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If turnabout is fair play, it still ranks as unpleasant for the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs, recipients of five unearned runs during their 8-4 series opening triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, Sunday returned the favor and salvaged little solace from their earlier fortune.

"Both were easy chances," Manager Jim Marshall moaned in reference to two errors by second baseman Manny Trillo awarding the Cards a 4-3 victory.

"I thought our pitcher pitched better than theirs," Marshall added disconsolately, "but when you don't make the plays that's what happens. You get beat."

Strong Cubs pitching to which Marshall alluded was that provided by right-hander Rick Reuschel, 9-8, who permitted St. Louis four singles in seven innings.

Two of the hits came after Trillo's first boot, however, and accounted for a 2-0 Cards lead in the fourth.

Three innings later, while Chicago was still struggling with one hit —Reuschel's double — off Lynn McGlothen, 9-9, St. Louis' Don Kessinger stroked a leadoff single and soon afterward circled the bases on Trillo's second miscue.

Rookie Hector Cruz also advanced to third when Trillo missed Reuschel's throw to first on his sacrifice bunt and scored on McGlothen's one-out sacrifice fly.

Cruz' run established a 4-0 Cards advantage and the margin held up against a five-hit Cubs uprising in the eighth finally quelled by reliever Al Hrabosky.

St. Louis' win, producing a split in the four-game series, came without resumption of a bean ball battle which occurred the previous night.

During that episode, pitchers Bob Forsch of the Cards and Bill Bonham of Chicago were fined $50 each and St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst was ejected before his club prevailed 12-3.

Bill Madlock of the Cubs, who was struck twice by Forsch deliveries, sat out Sunday's game with a slight headache from a pitch which glanced off his batting helmet.

"I'll be all right, but I still wonder whey they're throwing at me," said Madlock, the Chicago third baseman and leading hitter on his team's roster at .313.

Americans stage Sunday surge after disastrous Saturday

MONTREAL (AP) — The East Germans are leading, the Americans are on the rebound and the Russians are busily denying rumors one of their premier athletes is among the missing at the XXI Olympic Games.

American forces, down but not out after one of its worst days in Olympic history, turned Dark Saturday into Sunny Sunday with a gritty comeback that was sparked by one of the most dramatic moments of the Games — Shirley Babashoff's last-gasp winning anchor leg in the women's final swimming event, the 400-meter freestyle relay.

That victory, the continued dominance of the men swimmers, and a couple of gold medal performances by track and field men — including Edwin Moses' world record run in the 400 hurdles — served as the highlights of the American revival that came just in the nick of time.

East Germany, however, won five of the eight men's rowing finals, got a medal in every race and swept past the troubled Russians into the gold medal lead with 26. They also have 17 silver and 10 bronze, a total of 53. Russia leads in total medals with a 24-24-22 gold-silver-bronze count. The United States, which won only 10 of the 104 medals distributed Friday and Saturday, collected 18 of 66 Sunday and has a 21-21-16 count.

And there was more trouble for the Russians, who will host the 1980 Games in Moscow. They've twice been accused of attempting to influence judges and had one of their modern pentathlon athletes kicked out for cheating. This time the problem involved unconfirmed reports that Valeriy Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes in 1972, either has defected or been kidnaped.

The Russians denied it. Mikhail Efimov, the Russian Olympic press attache, said Borzov was in the Village "and everything is okay with him."

A spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said they investigated and were assured the Russian sprnter "is in good hands."

The reports were fueled by Borzov's absence from the 200 trials and the sudden cancellation of a speaking engagement by his coach. The Soviet press attache said Borzov was withdrawn from the race because he had aggravated an old injury and added that he will compete in the 400-meter relay later this week.

The schedule today includes five track and field finals, with the Americans hoping for a one-two finish from Dave Roberts, Gainsville, Fla., and Earl Bell, Jonesboro, Ark., in the pole vault. Medals also will be awarded in the men's 200-meter dash, 10,000 meters and javelin and the women's 800.

The men's basketball team, apparently headed for another showdown with the Russians, plays Canada in a semifinal game. Russia plays Yugoslavia in the other. The winners meet for the gold medal which the Russians won in a controversial final in Munich in 1972. The American women could gain a silver against Czechoslovakia.

Also on the schedule are finals in fencing, cycling, judo and the men's platform diving.

Swimming ended last night. And it ended on a high note for the deeply frustrated American women who were facing their first gold medal shutout since 1952. It was averted by an almost superhuman performance by 19-year-old Shirley Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., and three of her teammates.

It was a last-gasp thing. Going into the last event, the Americans hadn't won. Miss Babashoff had collected three silver medals, including one in the exhausting 800 meters just an hour earlier. They were facing the broad-shouldered East German women, winners of all but one event.

And the American girls won it by the touch of Miss Babashoff's fingertips over the East Germans in world record time of 3 minutes, 44.82 seconds.

"I'm very happy with all my medals," Miss Babashoff said. "I did my very best in every race. In the relay, I just got a little more help."

The help came from Jill Strickel, Hacienda Heights, Calif., Kim Peyton, Portland, Ore., and Wendy Boglioli, Ocean City, N.J., each of whom clocked her own fastest time for 100 meters.

But it was the outspoken Miss Babashoff who provided the heroics. Only an hour after the 800 meters she came back to swim the anchor leg and just hold off East Germany's Claudia Hempel.

Petra Thumer of East Germany had to swim a world-record 8:39.63 to beat Miss Babashoff in the 800. Shirley was timed in 8:37.59 and Wendy Weinberg, Baltimore, was third in 8:42.

Ulrike Richter of East Germany won the other women's final last night, clocking 2:13.43 for the 200 backstroke with teammate Birgit Treibers and Nancy Garapick of Canada second and third.

Elena Vaytsckhovskaia of Russia won the women's platform diving with Deborah Wilson, Columbus, Ohio, third.

The American men, even more dominant than the East German women, reeled off two more in a string of victories that became almost routine.

Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., took the 100 freestyle in 49.99 and became the first man to crack 50 seconds. Jack Babashoff, Shirley's brother, was second in 50.81. Rod Strachan, Santa Ana, Calif., won the 400 individual medley in 4:23.68, another world record. Tim McKee, Newton Square, Pa., was second in 4:24.62.

In all, the American men won 12 of the 13 swimming events, set world records in 11 of them and accumulated 12 gold, 10 silver and 5 bronze medals in the strongest performance in the history of the Games.

They were kept from a sweep only by the victory of Scotland's David Wilkie over John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., Saturday night in 200 breaststroke.

"We aren't going to cry about that," said 6-foot-6 John Naber, Menlo Park, Calif., who collected four gold medals and a silver.

Hencken's loss came just as the American team seemed on the verge of collapse with the East Germans and Russians taking advantage of one of America's worst days ever to run up a big lead in medals.

But track and field victories by the lanky, 6-foot-2 Moses and massive Mac Wilkins in the discus Sunday, along with the United States' first individual gold in three-day equestrian, by Tad Coffin, helped greatly to restore American prestige.

the 6-foot-4, 250-pound Wilkins, from Eugene, Ore., won the discus with a heave of 221-5, well off his own record but good enough to win. Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany was second and John Powell, San Jose, Calif., third at 215-7.

Coffin, from Stratford, Vt., and Mike Plumb, Cheasapeak City, Md., finished one-two in the individual standings in the three-day equestrian and the Americans won the team title easily. Princess Anne of Great Britain finished 24th.

New striper record

CAMDENTON — Edmund Kolaks record lasted just long enough for Bob Coe to go fishing.

Coe, of Camdenton, caught a 25 pound, one ounce striped bass July 2 in Lake of the Ozarks to set a new state record for the ocean import. Kolaks had set the old record only a little over a month earlier with a 23:03 fish from Bull Shaols Lake.

Coe's fish is a Missourian, stocked by the Conservation Department, while Kolaks was a migrant from an Arkansas Stocking in the Arkansas portion of Bull Shaols.

Striped bass are ocean-going fish which adapted to freshwater in South Carolina reservoirs and since have been stocked in many reservoirs around the country. Missouri has them primarily in Lake of the Ozarks.

Coe used a shad to catch the big fish from the Big Niangua arm of the lake. Stripers feed heavily on shad and the Niangua arm is a favorite gathering place for the fish–one of the previous records also came from the same area.

No one knows how large striped bass will become in Missouri (or, for that matter, if the Lake of the Ozarks stocking will catch fire and become self-sustaining), but Arkansas has a 40-pound record and the salt-water national record is 72 pounds.

Other states have large stripers on the books. Alabama has a 55-pounder, Kansas 33:12 and Texas 27:5.

Missouri state record fish must be verified as to weight and species by a qualified member of the Conservation Department, usually either a fisheries biologist or a conservation agent.

PLEASE BE INFORMED ABOUT AMENDMENT 7
The Constitution guarantees free public education, and if this Amendment 7 should pass, taxpayers would also help pay for nonpublic school education, which is a privilege and should be paid for by those who choose this type of education. This Amendment 7, if passed, would set a precedent that breaks down the concept of separation of church and state and would be a foot-in-the-door for additional attempts at giving public school funds for non-public schools. This could lead to the destruction of the public school system.
This proposed amendment would provide the use of public funds for private and parochial schools. (1) It would tax all Missourians to support private and parochial schools. (2) It would raise taxes, and it would hurt the public schools which are already in a financial state.
We urge you to vote.

Americans stage Sunday surge after disastrous Saturday

MONTREAL (AP) — The East Germans are leading, the Americans are on the rebound and the Russians are busily denying rumors one of their premier athletes is among the missing at the XXI Olympic Games.

American forces, down but not out after one of its worst days in Olympic history, turned Dark Saturday into Sunny Sunday with a gritty comeback that was sparked by one of the most dramatic moments of the Games — Shirley Babashoff's last-gasp winning anchor leg in the women's final swimming event, the 400-meter freestyle relay.

That victory, the continued dominance of the men swimmers, and a couple of gold medal performances by track and field men — including Edwin Moses' world record run in the 400 hurdles — served as the highlights of the American revival that came just in the nick of time.

East Germany, however, won five of the eight men's rowing finals, got a medal in every race and swept past the troubled Russians into the gold medal lead with 26. They also have 17 silver and 10 bronze, a total of 53. Russia leads in total medals with a 24-24-22 gold-silver-bronze count. The United States, which won only 10 of the 104 medals distributed Friday and Saturday, collected 18 of 66 Sunday and has a 21-21-16 count.

And there was more trouble for the Russians, who will host the 1980 Games in Moscow. They've twice been accused of attempting to influence judges and had one of their modern pentathlon athletes kicked out for cheating. This time the problem involved unconfirmed reports that Valeriy Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes in 1972, either has defected or been kidnaped.

The Russians denied it. Mikhail Efimov, the Russian Olympic press attache, said Borzov was in the Village "and everything is okay with him."

A spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said they investigated and were assured the Russian sprnter "is in good hands."

The reports were fueled by Borzov's absence from the 200 trials and the sudden cancellation of a speaking engagement by his coach. The Soviet press attache said Borzov was withdrawn from the race because he had aggravated an old injury and added that he will compete in the 400-meter relay later this week.

The schedule today includes five track and field finals, with the Americans hoping for a one-two finish from Dave Roberts, Gainsville, Fla., and Earl Bell, Jonesboro, Ark., in the pole vault. Medals also will be awarded in the men's 200-meter dash, 10,000 meters and javelin and the women's 800.

The men's basketball team, apparently headed for another showdown with the Russians, plays Canada in a semifinal game. Russia plays Yugoslavia in the other. The winners meet for the gold medal which the Russians won in a controversial final in Munich in 1972. The American women could gain a silver against Czechoslovakia.

Also on the schedule are finals in fencing, cycling, judo and the men's platform diving.

Swimming ended last night. And it ended on a high note for the deeply frustrated American women who were facing their first gold medal shutout since 1952. It was averted by an almost superhuman performance by 19-year-old Shirley Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., and three of her teammates.

It was a last-gasp thing. Going into the last event, the Americans hadn't won. Miss Babashoff had collected three silver medals, including one in the exhausting 800 meters just an hour earlier. They were facing the broad-shouldered East German women, winners of all but one event.

And the American girls won it by the touch of Miss Babashoff's fingertips over the East Germans in world record time of 3 minutes, 44.82 seconds.

"I'm very happy with all my medals," Miss Babashoff said. "I did my very best in every race. In the relay, I just got a little more help."

The help came from Jill Strickel, Hacienda Heights, Calif., Kim Peyton, Portland, Ore., and Wendy Boglioli, Ocean City, N.J., each of whom clocked her own fastest time for 100 meters.

But it was the outspoken Miss Babashoff who provided the heroics. Only an hour after the 800 meters she came back to swim the anchor leg and just hold off East Germany's Claudia Hempel.

Petra Thumer of East Germany had to swim a world-record 8:39.63 to beat Miss Babashoff in the 800. Shirley was timed in 8:37.59 and Wendy Weinberg, Baltimore, was third in 8:42.

Ulrike Richter of East Germany won the other women's final last night, clocking 2:13.43 for the 200 backstroke with teammate Birgit Treibers and Nancy Garapick of Canada second and third.

Elena Vaytsckhovskaia of Russia won the women's platform diving with Deborah Wilson, Columbus, Ohio, third.

The American men, even more dominant than the East German women, reeled off two more in a string of victories that became almost routine.

Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., took the 100 freestyle in 49.99 and became the first man to crack 50 seconds. Jack Babashoff, Shirley's brother, was second in 50.81. Rod Strachan, Santa Ana, Calif., won the 400 individual medley in 4:23.68, another world record. Tim McKee, Newton Square, Pa., was second in 4:24.62.

In all, the American men won 12 of the 13 swimming events, set world records in 11 of them and accumulated 12 gold, 10 silver and 5 bronze medals in the strongest performance in the history of the Games.

They were kept from a sweep only by the victory of Scotland's David Wilkie over John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., Saturday night in 200 breaststroke.

"We aren't going to cry about that," said 6-foot-6 John Naber, Menlo Park, Calif., who collected four gold medals and a silver.

Hencken's loss came just as the American team seemed on the verge of collapse with the East Germans and Russians taking advantage of one of America's worst days ever to run up a big lead in medals.

But track and field victories by the lanky, 6-foot-2 Moses and massive Mac Wilkins in the discus Sunday, along with the United States' first individual gold in three-day equestrian, by Tad Coffin, helped greatly to restore American prestige.

the 6-foot-4, 250-pound Wilkins, from Eugene, Ore., won the discus with a heave of 221-5, well off his own record but good enough to win. Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany was second and John Powell, San Jose, Calif., third at 215-7.

Coffin, from Stratford, Vt., and Mike Plumb, Cheasapeak City, Md., finished one-two in the individual standings in the three-day equestrian and the Americans won the team title easily. Princess Anne of Great Britain finished 24th.

New striper record

CAMDENTON — Edmund Kolaks record lasted just long enough for Bob Coe to go fishing.

Coe, of Camdenton, caught a 25 pound, one ounce striped bass July 2 in Lake of the Ozarks to set a new state record for the ocean import. Kolaks had set the old record only a little over a month earlier with a 23:03 fish from Bull Shaols Lake.

Other states have large stripers on the books. Alabama has a 55-pounder, Kansas 33:12 and Texas 27:5.

Missouri state record fish must be verified as to weight and species by a qualified member of the Conservation Department, usually either a fisheries biologist or a conservation agent.

PLEASE BE INFORMED ABOUT AMENDMENT 7

The Constitution guarantees free public education, and if this Amendment 7 should pass, taxpayers would also help pay for nonpublic school education, which is a privilege and should be paid for by those who choose this type of education. This Amendment 7, if passed, would set a precedent that breaks down the concept of separation of church and state and would be a foot-in-the-door for additional attempts at giving public school funds for nonpublic schools. This could lead to the destruction of the public school system.

This proposed amendment would provide the use of public funds for private and parochial schools. (1) It would tax all Missourians to support private and parochial schools. (2) It would raise taxes, and it would hurt the public schools which are already in a financial state.

We urge you to vote.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, July 26, the 208th day of 1976. There are 158 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1953, Fidel Castro began a revolt in Cuba, attacking an army barracks at Santiago.

On this date:

In 1759, the French abandoned Fort Ticonderoga to the British in the French and Indian War.

In 1775, the Continental Congress established a post office department, with Benjamin Franklin as the first Postmaster General.

In 1944, in World War II, German V-2 rocket bombs hit targets in England for the first time.

In 1952, Argentina's first lady, Eva Peron, died.

In 1956, Egyptian crowds hailed President Gamal Abdel Nasser in Alexandria as he issued a decree nationalizing the Suez Canal.

Ten years ago: The United States disassociated itself from a call by South Viet Nam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for a confrontation with Communist China.

Five years ago: A U.S. government report was made public showing that blacks had made solid economic and social gains in the 1960's but still lagged behind whites in most categories.

One year ago: President Ford arrived in Bonn, West Germany as he began a ten-day European tour.

Thought for today: Culture is the ability to recognize the best in others — Matthew Arnold, English poet and critic, 1822-1888.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia was debating the question of how to handle affairs with Indian tribes.

To the victor may belong the spoils but it's the loser who often ends up with the bigger bills in U.S. presidential elections. In half of the campaigns from 1932 to 1972, the losing candidates outspent the winners. The 1976 election is the first under the new law limiting campaign contributions and expenditures and providing federal subsidies for candidates. (ECONOMIST graph) being a feline speciality, it should be no surprise how this little encounter in San Juan, Puerto Rico, worked itself out.

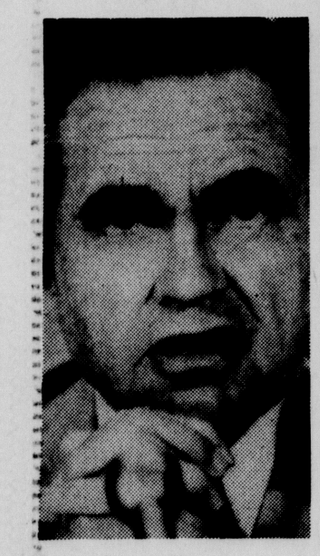
LOW OVERHEAD serves a double purpose on the "Quasar", a British-designed motorcycle. The covering, or fairing, produces a smooth outline to reduce drag and also gives the rider weather protection.



A LAST HURRAH for George Wallace, the 1976 campaign is believed to mark the end of his presidential efforts. Now endorsing Jimmy Carter for the Democratic nomination, the Georgia governor has had a major impact on every presidential campaign since 1964.

Robbers' sentencing is set for August

Sentencing has been set for sometime in August by Pennsylvania authorities for members of a bank robbery ring operating in Missouri and Pennsylvania which apparently was also responsible for the Dec. 29 holdup of the Bank of Chaffee's Morley branch.

Kenneth Beardlsee, 40 of St. Louis, a man who 16 years ago was involved with four persons in the robbery of the nearby Bank of Oran of $11,491; Ronald Beardslee 32, of St. Louis and his wife, Judith, 32 , of Kingsley, Pa., pleaded guilty to a September 1975 robbery of $18,000 from a Pennsylvania bank during criminal proceeding in that state.

Another man involved in that theft, Frank Downey, 37, also apparently involved in the Morley robbery, has requested a separate trial.

Judith Beardslee, charged with conspiracy in the Montdale robbery, was not convicted. She and the two, brothers and Downey are charged, however, with a $15,433 robbery of the People's National Bank in Hop Bottom, Pa., in August 1975 and are awaiting trial in that case. The group is also charged with a $3,000 robbery of a Clifford, Pa., bank in January.

Chief witness at the Montdale trial was Kenneth Beardslee's nephew, David Nazar, 21, of Dalton, Pa., who said he robbed the bank while he was "high on acid" and described a cross country trip during which most of the robbery money was spent by the gang.

Robbers' sentencing is set for August

Sentencing has been set for sometime in August by Pennsylvania authorities for members of a bank robbery ring operating in Missouri and Pennsylvania which apparently was also responsible for the Dec. 29 holdup of the Bank of Chaffee's Morley branch.

Kenneth Beardlsee, 40 of St. Louis, a man who 16 years ago was involved with four persons in the robbery of the nearby Bank of Oran of $11,491; Ronald Beardslee 32, of St. Louis and his wife, Judith, 32 , of Kingsley, Pa., pleaded guilty to a September 1975 robbery of $18,000 from a Pennsylvania bank during criminal proceeding in that state.

Another man involved in that theft, Frank Downey, 37, also apparently involved in the Morley robbery, has requested a separate trial.

Judith Beardslee, charged with conspiracy in the Montdale robbery, was not convicted. She and the two, brothers and Downey are charged, however, with a $15,433 robbery of the People's National Bank in Hop Bottom, Pa., in August 1975 and are awaiting trial in that case. The group is also charged with a $3,000 robbery of a Clifford, Pa., bank in January.

Chief witness at the Montdale trial was Kenneth Beardslee's nephew, David Nazar, 21, of Dalton, Pa., who said he robbed the bank while he was "high on acid" and described a cross country trip during which most of the robbery money was spent by the gang.
